

CARL THOMAS DURHAM, native of Orange County, alumnus and Trustee of this University, member of Congress for twenty years from the Sixth District of North Carolina, and now Chairman of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee of the 85th Congress, has manifested those qualities of leadership and judgment which endeared him to his friends and neighbors when, as a pharmacist in Eubanks' Drug store, he was guide and counsellor to half the village and effective member of various local government boards. Dedicated citizen and public servant, he has broadened his field of work from his home to his nation, and finally to the world, through his appointment as United States Representative on the International Atomic Energy Agency, set up by fifty-two nations to explore the peaceful application of nuclear energy. In grateful recognition of his attainments, the University is happy to bestow on him the degree of Doctor of Laws.
