

Resolution 2012-12. On Revising the Regulation Concerning Independent Studies for Credit.

The Faculty Council resolves:

The academic regulation concerning independent studies for credit found on page 52 of the 2012-13 Undergraduate Bulletin is amended as follows:

“Independent Studies for Credit

The University offers a variety of independent study experiences for students. Such courses, including directed readings, internships, and research courses for an individual student, are offered for academic credit through departments and curricula. Twelve hours of graded independent study credit, excluding honors thesis courses, may be counted toward graduation., ~~though no~~ No more than ~~six~~ twelve hours may be taken in any one semester. Students may participate in formalized programs, or they may make individualized contracts for work under the supervision of a member of the permanent faculty at the department/curriculum level. For information about independent studies courses in their majors, students should consult the director of undergraduate studies in their major department or curriculum.”
