CARL VERNON REYNOLDS, Doctor of Medicine of the University of the City of New York, 1895; from 1934 until his retirement in 1948, North Carolina State Health Officer; specialist in the treatment of Tuberculosis and in problems of public health; for half a century his enthusiastic leadership and wise counsel have promoted the cause of better health across our state, and at his retirement he left as his monument a state Public Health organization second to none. He was instrumental in the establishment of the School of Public Health at this University, and was ever one of its staunchest supporters. For his altruistic and unselfish service to the cause of better health, this state and this University owe him a debt of gratitude.

By the vote of the Faculty and Trustees of the University of North Carolina we confer upon you the degree of Doctor of Laws.
