

HERMAN GLENN BAITY

Herman Glenn Baity, who has undergraduate and Master of Science degrees from this institution, and an earned Doctor of Science degree from Harvard, served the University well as teacher and administrator for more than thirty years. Because of his achievements and distinction in the field of Sanitary Engineering, the state, the nation, and foreign countries frequently called on him for expert counsel. In 1950 he joined the World Health Organization, with headquarters in Geneva, Switzerland, where he held various important posts until his retirement. He continues to serve the Agency for International Development of the United States Department of State. The University of North Carolina delights to honor this admired alumnus, colleague, scholar, and citizen of the world, once again at home in Chapel Hill, conferring on him the degree of Doctor of Laws.
