

TERRY SANFORD, Governor of North Carolina, born in Laurinburg, graduate of this University in Arts and in Law, major in a Parachute Combat Team in the European theater in World War II, member of the North Carolina Bar and formerly senator in the North Carolina Legislature, fitly represents the rising generation of leaders in the nation.

Advocate of quality education, forward-looking, fair-minded, he has shown during his brief administration, not by promise alone but by positive action, his firm intention to raise the standards of education in North Carolina at all levels, and to place his state in the forefront of the nation, not only in agriculture but in culture, not only in industry but in intellectual achievements. Recognizing his inspiring leadership in the field of education, his alma mater proudly bestows on him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

UNC
University Day
October 12, 1961