

Statement of the Faculty Executive Committee Reaffirming the Importance of Free Expression and Constructive Dialog in the Life of the University

The Faculty Executive Committee reaffirms the importance of free expression and constructive dialog in the life of the university, as stated in Faculty Council Resolution 2018-3, and condemns the recent incidents of vandalism against the Carolina Review. We urge everyone on campus to continue to work on building a climate that fosters civil discourse and open debate.

Approved by the Faculty Executive Committee on April 28, 2021

Background:

This statement by the Faculty Executive Committee was issued in response to the news that, on April 28, the Carolina Review's website was hacked and some of its distribution boxes were vandalized. The committee looks forward to learning more about this incident once a police investigation has been completed.
